

Petri Vuorinen
Director

The English School,
Helsinki, Finland

Independent Schools in Finland

The future of Finnish independent schools appears secure, stable and unchallenged.

WHY

1. Both independent and public schools adhere to a shared national core curriculum to ensure consistent educational standards across the country.
2. Schools can “personalize” their educational approach through their school-based curricula, allowing them to highlight particular values or areas of focus.
3. Separation between education and political intervention.
Educational policies in Finland are not subject to drastic shifts allowing for long-term consistency and trust. This trust is fundamental not only in schools but across Finnish society, allowing independent schools to operate within a framework of mutual respect and reliability.
4. As long as Finland continues to value educational equity, foster diversity within a unified curriculum, and trust in its institutions, the future of independent schools in Finland looks as bright as it is today!

